The Civic Commons

Located across from the pier, on the south end of the current city parking lot, is one component of another major civic amenity being proposed for the CRA: the Civic Commons. This is essentially a band of parks, public open space, and civic buildings that run east-west across the island from the beach to the Intracoastal. Located near the center, on either side of A1A, are a new fire station and library that replace existing older and substandard facilities in the area. These buildings are situated so as to subdivide the open space into areas having different characters. It provides an open park space along the beach that is more passive in nature, and uses the back side of the library to define a focal area for outdoor performances. The park space on the west side is located behind the fire station, and is seen as more of a quiet, neighborhood park that will serve to add value to the private frontage created on the other three sides.

The buildings themselves are placed on either side of A1A in such a manner as to define a civic node along A1A. This area will receive a special paving treatment, and will serve to mark the transition of A1A from a retail/commercial street to the south to a more high density residential area to the north. While replacing the functions in the area, these buildings will also provide two new amenities that emerged as priorities during the public planning sessions. The fire station will also contain a walk-in emergency clinic, and the library will contain a community meeting space.
